The "Dis-Clue-sure" course is a board game like Monopoly, developed by an Errors and Omissions Insurance company to create "fun" in learning "actions" that may cause errors and omissions claims. Playing the game will excite the participants spirit of competition and enthusiasm. The first half is the board game, then we go into (after a break) more of a "who wants to be a millionaire" format...asking questions of the "winners" of each of the table games. They may ask for a lifeline to their table team members. At the end of that segment the floor is opened to all participants to ask questions.
